

SSPN
4Floors Report

When: October 27th, 9 p.m. to 3 a.m.

Aspects of Event:

1st Floor: Gerts was open, pitchers were $7. Engineering students set up a wheel on one side of Gerts, where prizes were given dependant on the spin.

2nd Floor (Dry Floor): Karaoke was set up in the corner lounge room along with MSERT, Red Frogs, and WalkSafe.

3rd Floor: Clubs set up their own personal booths, which helped promote their clubs. The list includes: Ski and Snowboard, Quidditch, Right to Play, POWE, A-Capella, Circus Club, EMC, and Plumber's Philharmonic Orchestra. The SRC was open and acted as another chill spot. Local McGill/Montreal talent played on a stage in the back of the room.

4th Floor: Local talent played for the first couple of hours before the headliner, Hunter Siegel. Sound/lighting was like New City Gas and the atmosphere was pretty awesome.

Tickets: Projected tickets sold is over 900. The final number is not confirmed yet, but the event sold out very well.

Things that went well: Local talent+Hunter Siegel were great. Lighting/sound on all floors was very good. Logistically, planned very well.

Things to Improve: Ticket price was a bit much at $25, maybe it can be scaled back. A cheaper headliner would help to solve this issue. The 2nd floor did not have a ton of people throughout the night. Layout should be reconsidered for future 4Floors. Potentially more money could be allocated to decorations.

Tl;dr: 4 Floors was lit, it's restored its reputation. Lawrie killed it.
